

01 MAGDEBURG CATHEDRAL OF ST. MAURICE AND ST. CATHERINE

The towers of Magdeburg Cathedral stretch 104 metres above the city. In 955, Emperor Otto the Great commissioned the construction of a monumental cathedral in Magdeburg, his favourite palatine and residence. Otto had many precious pieces of antique art shipped to Magdeburg from Northern Italy to grace his cathedral, for example columns made of marble and granite in the imperial colours, which can still be admired in the building today. The Ottonian cathedral was destroyed in a city fire in 1207. It was later re-erected as the first cathedral in Gothic style on German soil.

Visitors to the cathedral can now view the graves of the first German Emperor and his wife Edith and admire world-famous works of art, including the early Gothic sculptures of "The Wise and the Foolish Virgins" and Saint Maurice. The cathedral has been Protestant since 1567. In the summer months, the Cathedral Square covering 20,000m² is used as a venue for theatre, music and other events. The structures on the eastern side of the square mirror the foundations of historic Ottonian walls and the fountains opposite are ideal for a refreshing splash!

OPENING HOURS:

Nov – March 10am – 4pm | Apr & Oct 10am – 5pm
May – Sept 10am – 6pm
From 11:30am on Sundays and church holidays

02 THE GREEN CITADEL OF MAGDEBURG

Magdeburg is home to the last architectural project by the famous artist Friedensreich Hundertwasser. With its colourful façade, grass-covered roofs and large golden spheres, the Green Citadel is certainly an eye-catching attraction. For the residents of Magdeburg, the construction of this unique building was a controversial issue for a long time. Nowadays the imaginative creation forms an essential part of the cityscape and is perfectly integrated into the mix of Baroque façades and modern design along the Breiter Weg. The artist himself unfortunately did not live to see the completion of the project in 2005.

Hundertwasser designed a total of 900 different windows for the building. Visitors can enjoy the open courtyards and many shops and also spend some time in the cafés, restaurants and hotel located within the building's colourful sloping walls. The upper floors of the Green Citadel contain flats and offices, the tenants of which have "window rights" and can decorate their windows as they wish. Tenants are also responsible for the trees in and in front of their premises. A show apartment and guided tours of the terraces offering an excellent view enable visitors to actively experience the Austrian artist's creative idea.

OPENING HOURS:

COURTYARD: all year round, free admission
INFORMATION CENTRE: Mon – Sun 10am – 6pm

07 ALTER MARKT WITH THE TOWN HALL AND MAGDEBURG HORSEMAN

The Old Town Hall, which houses the Mayor's office, is one of Magdeburg's most important buildings and dates back as far as the 12th century. The Alter Markt (Old Market Square) is a central location for many events and the city's daily market. At the heart of the square stands the Magdeburg Horseman, a gold-plated bronze replica of the first free-standing equestrian statue located north of the Alps.

OPENING HOURS: Market days: Tue – Fri 9am – 5pm | Sat 9am – 1pm | Town Hall: Mon – Fri 9am – 6pm

08 MARK FORTRESS

The Mark Fortress was once one of the city's key defence buildings. In the mid-19th-century, it housed up to 800 soldiers. In the 1920s, the barracks were transformed to accommodate the employment agency. After the building was severely damaged in the Second World War, restoration work began in 2001. The historic building is now used as a venue for cultural events.

OPENING HOURS:

Office: Mon – Fri 9am – 4pm and during events

09 OTTO VON GUERICKE CENTRE

In the Lukasklaue, a former medieval defence tower, an exhibition is dedicated to the life and works of a famous Magdeburg resident: the physicist Otto von Guericke (1602-1686). Accurate replicas of his devices and experiments explain the successful results of his research, for example the development of the air pump and the use of the world-famous Magdeburg hemispheres to demonstrate the power of air pressure.

OPENING HOURS:

Tue – Fri & Sun 10am – 5pm and during events

THINGS TO SEE AND PLACES TO VISIT

03 THE CATHEDRAL MUSEUM OTTONIANUM MAGDEBURG

In 968, Emperor Otto the Great established a new archbishopric in Magdeburg, and archaeologists have since discovered spectacular artefacts. The newly opened Ottonianum Cathedral Museum presents three major topics connected to the Middle Ages in Europe: Emperor Otto the Great with his Queen Edith, the Archbishopric of Magdeburg and unique archaeological finds, including an original lead sarcophagus and intricately embroidered archbishop's shoes.

OPENING HOURS:

Tue – Sun 10am – 5pm, closed on 24th and 31st Dec

04 ART MUSEUM IN THE MONASTERY OF OUR LADY

This Romanesque monastery complex brings together modern art and historical architecture. The Art Museum is the most important location for contemporary art and sculpture in Saxony-Anhalt. The building, which dates back to the 11th and 12th centuries, is home to international works of contemporary art and also forms an important part of the "Romanesque Road". An information centre located at Domplatz 1b provides an insight into the Romanesque architecture and course of this tourist route.

OPENING HOURS:

Tue – Fri 10am – 5pm | Sat/Sun 10am – 6pm

With the medieval, Romanesque and Bauhaus eras, architectural styles from different ages are all located in close proximity in Magdeburg. One of the oldest and largest lift bridges in Germany offers unique views of these stunning monuments. The western bank of the river Elbe is lined with historical buildings such as the cathedral, monastery, Walloon Church and St. Petri Church, while the opposite bank contains important examples of Bauhaus architecture, namely the Stadthalle (Civic Hall) and Albinmüller Tower.

The Lift Bridge was constructed in 1846 for the first railway line leading to Berlin. It now provides pedestrians and cyclists with an important connection between the Rotehornpark and the city centre. A fundraising campaign allowed the bridge to be restored in 2013. Local residents were able to purchase its wooden slats and have them engraved. At one end of the bridge, the former Elbe Train Station has been transformed into a modern residential district. Restaurants on the banks of the Elbe provide a view of the cityscape and in the summer, the white sand of the Beach Bar makes it the perfect place to chill out.

10 CULTURAL HISTORY MUSEUM & MUSEUM OF NATURE

Two in one: the Magdeburg Cultural History Museum is full of historic artwork and artefacts revealing the full history of the city and the Museum of Nature provides an insight into the diversity of life in and around Magdeburg. A multitude of special exhibitions focus on topical issues and in the Kaiser-Otto-Saal hall, visitors can admire the original Magdeburg Horseman, a statue believed to depict Emperor Otto the Great.

OPENING HOURS:

Tue – Fri 10am – 5pm | Sat/Sun 10am – 6pm

11 PUPPETRY COLLECTION IN THE VILLA P.

Magdeburg Puppet Theatre is home to the largest public collection of puppets and accessories in Central Germany. With its large range of puppets and guided tours, this exhibition with interactive features takes visitors on an unforgettable journey through the history of the world of puppetry in the District House building dating back to the year 1884.

OPENING HOURS:

Wed – Sun 11am – 5pm

12 MUSEUM OF TECHNOLOGY

In a former hall of the Krupp-Gruson factory, visitors are invited to explore the industrial history of Magdeburg and the region. Alongside its collection of engines and machine tools, the museum also showcases objects from the domains of printing technology, locking technology and transportation in its hands-on exhibition.

OPENING HOURS:

Tue – Sun 10am – 5pm | Open on public holidays other than 24th/25th/31st Dec

13 28 MAGDEBURG ZOO

Nearly 1400 animals representing 243 species are waiting to be discovered at Magdeburg Zoo. The park landscape covering 20 hectares is home to many rare and threatened species such as black rhinoceros, Siberian tigers and white lions. Its new savannah area houses elephants and dwarf mongoose.

OPENING HOURS:

Mar – Oct 9am – 6pm | Feb & Nov 9am – 5pm
Dec & Jan 9am – 4pm

14 GRUSON GREENHOUSES

The Magdeburg-based industrial entrepreneur Hermann Gruson began to collect exotic plants back in as early as 1896. Nowadays, visitors to the ten greenhouses of the Gruson complex can admire more than 4000 tropical and subtropical plants from six different continents, as well as caimans, poison dart frogs, chameleons and exotic fish.

OPENING HOURS:

Tue – Sun 9am – 5pm | On public holidays also open on Mondays. 9am – 5pm

13 28 FÜRSTENWALL AREA

Magdeburg was once the strongest Prussian fortress and nowadays, the Fürstenwall city fortifications are a reminder of these times. The Cleve Bastion formed the south-eastern corner of a complete ring of fortifications and is now adjacent to the Fürstenwallpark, work on which started in 1990. Towards the cathedral, one of the city's oldest gardens provides an insight into its history and leads to the Fürstenwall Promenade, Germany's first public promenade. The Möllenvogteigarten (Bailiwick Garden) is home to Magdeburg's last surviving city gate.

29 GRÜNDERZEIT BOULEVARD

With the Palais am Fürstenwall building, once the representative residence of the German imperial family and now the seat of the Minister-President of Saxony-Anhalt, the Hegelstrasse features stunningly decorated façades and also a monument dedicated to Friedrich Wilhelm von Steuben. The Magdeburg-born Prussian officer and American General played a significant role in the victory of the American independence movement.

Sporting firsts form an integral part of life in Magdeburg: In 1974, 1. FC Magdeburg (FCM) was the first East German football team to win a European championship with a 2:0 victory over AC Milan. In the MDC Arena, which was constructed in 2006, FCM now regularly takes to the pitch in front of more than 25,000 fans famous for their impressive choreographies. In 2002, Magdeburg's handball club became the first German handball club to win the Champions League. When SC Magdeburg plays at home, all 7000 seats in the GETEC Arena are often filled with spectators.

Magdeburg isn't just a training location for professional athletes: The Rotehornpark on a 200-hectare, largely car-free island on the river Elbe offers plenty of jogging opportunities right up to marathon distance in a green landscape. The Herrenkrugpark is home to a golf course divided up into three sections between the banks of the river Elbe and the racecourse and climbing fans will love the 25-metre-high climbing rock in the Elbauenpark.

05 ELBAUENPARK AND MILLENNIUM TOWER

The Elbauenpark offers leisure fun for everyone in a green space covering around 100 hectares. Particularly brave visitors will love the ElbauenZip, a huge zip line starting from the Millennium Tower and reaching speeds of up to 60 km/h (37 mph). Other exciting attractions include the adventure playgrounds between the ramparts, the high ropes course, the summer toboggan run and the labyrinth. Animal fans are sure to enjoy the exotic butterflies and plants in the tropical Butterfly House, the fallow deer reserve and the petting area. The Elbauenpark is a top location for flower lovers. Hundreds of daffodils, roses and dahlias bloom in the former grounds of the German Federal Garden Show (BUGA) venue every year. From April to October, the Elbauen-Express electric park bus transports visitors through the large park. Both the Lake Stage and the extensive green meadows have been popular event venues since the BUGA in 1999. The park was once home to barracks and shooting grounds after becoming a military site in Prussian times. After the bombing raids in the Second World War, the debris was brought here. In memory of the devastating destruction of the city, old bricks were incorporated into the design of the park.

OPENING HOURS of the Elbauenpark:

Apr, Sept & Oct Mon – Sun 9am – 6pm
May – Aug Mon – Sun 9am – 7pm
All attractions closed on Mondays, other than during school and public holidays in Saxony-Anhalt

PARKS IN MAGDEBURG

The Director General of the Royal Prussian parks and gardens, Peter Joseph Lenné, certainly made a mark on Magdeburg with its stunning green spaces. By designing the Klosterberggarten, he created the first public garden in a German-speaking country, which contains the impressive Society House designed by Karl Friedrich Schinkel. Lenné was also the man behind the historic Herrenkrugpark, a green landscaped sports and leisure area containing a hotel, racecourse and golf course.

32 CITY PARK WITH THE CIVIC HALL AND ALBINMÜLLER TOWER

Magdeburg's green oasis is located on an island on the river Elbe covering 200 hectares. It offers recreation at its best and important examples of modernism in Magdeburg. In 1927, the park's historic Civic Hall and its five-arched "Pferdetor" monument took just four and a half months to construct for the German Theatre Exhibition. The Albinmüller Tower offers panoramic views of the city between April and November. The park also offers leisure activities in a natural setting, e.g. a large adventure playground with a skatepark and a boat hire service on the "Adolf-Mittag-See" lake.

OPENING HOURS of the Albinmüller Tower:

Open April – Nov, Mon – Fri 10:30am – 5pm and weekends | public holidays 12pm – 6pm

40 39 MAGDEBURG WATERWAY JUNCTION AND HISTORIC SHIP LIFT

The longest canal bridge in the world forms the heart of the Waterway Junction. This steel bridge stretching 918 metres leads the Mittelland Canal across the river Elbe. Powerful locks and a ship lift enable inland water vessels to travel along the aqueduct at a height of more than seven metres above the river. Together with the historic ship lift in Rothensee and the double water-saving lock in Hohenwarthe, the Waterway Junction forms part of a gigantic transport project. It allowed the connection between Hanover, Magdeburg and Berlin to be extended to cover the waterways. An observation tower provides a view of the entire complex and visitors are welcome to come and experience the locks operating at depths of up to 20 metres. The company Weiße Flotte offers boat trips to the Waterway Junction from April to October.

CHURCHES IN MAGDEBURG

Magdeburg was once known as the city of church towers until the majority of its more than 30 churches were destroyed and only a few rebuilt. Nowadays, the cityscape is still characterised by more than a dozen medieval churches from the Romanesque and Gothic periods. The Walloon Church of St. Augustine, which was once a monastery, St. Petri Church and the Magdalene Chapel all form part of the banks of the river Elbe. In the city centre, you will find the Catholic Cathedral Church of St. Sebastian, the episcopal church of the Diocese of Magdeburg dating back to 1015.

06 ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

The history of Magdeburg's oldest parish church stretches back to the 10th century. The church is where Martin Luther preached his sermon on justice, which led the city and its council to convert to Protestantism. It is also linked to Otto von Guericke, the inventor of the air pump, who was buried in its crypt together with his family. The church was severely damaged in the Second World War before being reconstructed as a concert and conference venue in 1991. Its windows are an outstanding work of art designed by Max Uhlig.

WELCOME TO MAGDEBURG the City of Otto!

1200 years of history side by side with extremely modern architecture is what Magdeburg's all about. Nowhere else will you find brightly coloured Hundertwasser walls directly next to the monumental structure of Germany's first Gothic cathedral. With its green oases, creative eateries and impressive exhibitions in historic buildings, Magdeburg is a truly vibrant cultural metropolis. As one of the oldest German cities, Magdeburg allows you to experience history up close and in person and breathes new life into the milestones achieved by its two famous Ottos.

The first Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire of the German Nation, Otto the Great, declared the city to be his favourite palatine. He made Magdeburg an Archbishopric in 968 and commissioned the construction of its monumental cathedral. Magdeburg was the centre of his political power and was often cited alongside Rome and Byzantium. It witnessed several major accomplishments that went on to achieve global success, for example the air pump. The inventor of what is now an indispensable tool, the physicist Otto von Guericke, born in Magdeburg and used his famous Magdeburg hemispheres experiment to demonstrate the power of air pressure to the whole world.

Nowadays, the City of Otto is still making new ideas a reality, from the world's tallest wooden tower right through to its longest water bridge. Come and make new discoveries in Magdeburg! As the Magdeburg Law says, it's "first come, first served", and the model for all of Europe's early municipal laws simply can't be wrong!

The Breiter Weg is Magdeburg's longest boulevard and connects the city's most important locations. Starting at Magdeburg's nightlife hotspot, the Hasselbachplatz square, the street stretches two and a half kilometres to the large Opera House in the Universitätsplatz square. A multitude of restaurants, cafés and bars invite visitors to enjoy culinary treats along the way. The Breiter Weg is also a paradise for shopaholics, with more than 200 shops offering ideal products for all kinds of tastes.

The two buildings at 178 and 179 Breiter Weg have been lovingly chritened Max and Moritz by local residents. The city's last two Baroque buildings preserved in their original form bear witness to what was once the most stunning Baroque street in Germany. Legend has it that the "Broadway" in New York was even named after its counterpart in Magdeburg ("Breiter Weg" = "Broad Way"). It is said that in 1607, traders relocated to America from Magdeburg and missed it so much that they created a replica of the magnificent boulevard.
